

April Fool's!

It's no secret that everyone loves a good joke here and there and with April comes April Fool's Day - a moment in time where playing pranks and telling jokes is put to the test. I would like to share with you a few funny jokes I like.

First, there are the Chuck Norris jokes that frame the actor and martial-arts expert as a sort of demi-god. Some of my favorite include:

- Chuck Norris' tears cure cancer. Too bad he never cries.
- There is no theory of evolution. Just a list of creatures Chuck Norris has allowed to live.
- Chuck Norris played Russian roulette with a fully loaded gun and won.
- Chuck Norris counted to infinity - twice.

Then there's one of my all-time favorite jokes that deals with the subtleties of punctuation:

A panda walks into a bar and orders a hamburger. When he's finished the hamburger, he pulls out a revolver, fires it three times into the ceiling and runs out the door. Everybody in the bar is amazed to see this behavior from a panda. Somebody says let's find a dictionary, so we can look it up. So they do.

"P... panda... member of the bear family... native of China... eats shoots and leaves!"

And finally, who doesn't love a silly play on words every now and then:

What do you get when you throw a bomb into a French kitchen?

Linoleum blown apart.
